

Bala Cynwyd, PA – June 8, 2012 - Coriando and American Insurance Management Group, Inc. (AIM) have forged a partnership to introduce an award winning and revolutionary Business Process Management Technology – “Enj” – to the property & casualty insurance and reinsurance financial segment. AIM will take the lead in acquainting the industry with Coriando’s Enj-based, “game changing” IT solutions.

Since 1989, AIM (www.aim-grp.com) has been assisting executive management teams of P&C, life, health insurers/reinsurers and regulators all seeking to formulate strategic focus; effectively deploy human and capital assets; facilitate mergers, acquisitions and joint ventures; rehabilitate distressed companies and maximize organizational effectiveness.

Alexander T. Farley, AIM’s President, and Michael G. Thistle, Esq. Executive Director bring over 50 years of combined insurance/reinsurance experience as managers and consultants to address endemic industry problems collectively caused by systems that don’t communicate; information gaps and customized “off the shelf” IT solutions. Both Alec and Mike possess “hands-on” familiarity with the data interchange challenges encountered between policy issuing carriers, reinsurers, program administrators, MGU’s MGA’s and TPA’s that rely on different systems. Communication and management of data exchanges between these different systems can only be accomplished by costly and time consuming code writing. With Enj, a revolutionary solution linking together systems, the time and expense of code writing is no longer required, dramatically minimizing cost and implementation time. Future system changes and integration can now be managed in a near heartbeat by Enj while continuing to use the same platform. We’re excited by the opportunity to see your expressions when we demonstrate Enj’s capabilities for you.
